Re: Ziming Shen v. United States,
15 Cv. 5840, 5935 (DLI)
12 Cr. 68 (DLI)

Dear Judge Irizarry:

As counsel for Ziming Shen I write to object to this Court's sua sponte order entered on October 14, 2015, which deemed Mr. Shen's motion for a writ of error coram nobis to be a motion to reduce, vacate, or correct a sentence pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2255.

As noted in the coram nobis papers submitted by Mr. Shen:

As a general rule, restitution and forfeiture, because they are non-custodial portions of the sentence, cannot be challenged by a motion pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2255. See Kaminski v. United States, 339 F.3d 84 (2d Cir. 2003). But relief is available to a defendant harmed by an illegal restitution award or an illegal forfeiture order through a writ of coram nobis. See Mansour v. United States, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 46884 (S.D.N.Y. 2015); Carnesi v. United States, 933 F. Supp. 2d 388 (E.D.N.Y. 2013); Ewan v. United States, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 120073 (E.D.N.Y. 2012); see also Kaminski, 339 F.3d at 89-91 (Calabresi, J., concurring).

Memorandum of Law in Support of Petition for a Writ of Coram Nobis, dated, October 9, 2015 (ecf #1, at 8, ecf #180 at 8)) (footnote omitted).

Here, since Mr. Shen is not in custody he has properly sought a writ of coram nobis to vacate the restitution and forfeiture orders incorporated into his judgment. As shown in the papers submitted in support of his coram nobis petition, Mr. Shen has met the standards for establishing his entitlement to coram nobis relief pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1651(a).

Accordingly, we respectfully request that this Court vacate and/or rescind its October 14, 2015 order and consider Mr. Shen's petition in the manner in which it was intended.

Respectfully submitted,

Steve Zissou
Attorney for Ziming Shen
